More Wind Needed For Kite Contest

Wind did not cooperate very well Sunday during the Flathead County Park Board's first annual kite flying contest in Columbia Falls, but with periodic gusts, kites did become airborne.

Top prize winner was Gary Brough who took home three first place ribbons. He had the best workmanship, largest kite and most beautiful kite. His brother Mike Brough had the highest flier. Dale Robinson had the second largest kite. Mike Wenger took first for smallest kite. Pat Nicholls was second. Randy Phillips had the second most beautiful kite.

Karen Temple had the most comical kite with Tim Sauer second and Neil Brunett third. John Wenger also had a first prize incentive kite, followed by Monica Griffith.

Flathead County Park Board member L. W. McNeil commented this was a fine example of family togetherness in a recreation activity. Hope is the program will continue and become bigger and better next year.

He thanked Mrs. Eldon Clark for allowing her land to be used for the contest.

Burro Problems

The National Park Service will complete a full environmental impact statement before taking action on the proposed elimination of burros from Grand Canyon National Park. Recognized is the popular image of the burro, and also the NPS obligation to protect the natural resources of parklands. The burro isn't a Grand Canyon native.

Report from New Jersey

Diane Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Elliott, is a Columbia Falls High School Junior, who is an American Field Service domestic exchange student.

Diane is spending five months with the Robert Stanfield family in Mountain Lakes, N.J., a suburb of Newark, N.J. She's the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Klaus DeWitt, Bitterroot, former Columbia Falls residents.

Here's a letter to the Hungry Horse News from Diane:

Well, today I've been here two months and I can't believe the time has gone by so fast!

I thought I would write to you and tell you about New Jersey and the experiences I've had so far. You might want to put them into the paper or not. I like the paper here and I really love it especially the pictures. You really don't appreciate them until you're away from the area.

The plane trip over was exciting and very nerve wracking. I landed in New York, which at night looked solid cement. The family I am staying with has two cars and a huge 70 year old house. Mountain Lakes is a very residential area. There are a lot of people who commute to New York to work. My hosts are not too far from the school. The school is pretty tough.

What would be if I in Columbia Falls would probably be Cs here. (Not to put down CHS but I think it is true.) The kids are really nice and friendly and I have made a lot of friends.

In school we had a week vacation in February. We went to Vermont and skied the whole time, it was fun. The hills here are molehills compared to the mountains surrounding Columbia Falls. When we all came back to school there were a few privileged with dark beautiful teeth. They had spent the whole year in New York only once so far. I went to Madison Square Gardens and watched a college girls' basketball game. That place is huge. I think too many people in New York take it for granted. The weather here is totally different than Montana.

It was quite an experience being here during the cold period. February I think was their coldest month. It was a wet cold rather than a dry cold. The first day of spring it snowed and today it has rained steady and hard for the whole day. And tomorrow they say it will be snowing.

They're starting to have troubles with flooding because of the frozen ground. They should transport some of the wet stuff over west for their troubles. I've been really busy with schoolwork and AFS and all kinds of stuff. When the weather gets better we're going into New York and see more of the sights. I'm definitely going to see the Broadway show, "The Wiz." I'm really excited for that.

Well I've got to go now, thanks for all the letters that everybody has sent. Sincerely, Diane Elliott

PEOPLE
THE BURRO
IS OVER
ARE ALIVE

The power situation in the Northwest remains serious.

The rains that started the first of March should have started last September. As a result, power reservoirs are still way below normal. Snowpack is less than half what it should be.

Right now there is a 50-50 chance mandatory curtailment will be necessary this summer or fall. That projection is based on "normal" precipitation from here on out.

Think about it this way. Loss of power will mean loss of jobs...and family hardship. It will mean mandatory steps to cut use. No ifs, ands or buts.

The only way we have of avoiding this situation is to curtail use now.

It may be difficult to understand why turning off lights, reducing thermostats and hot water use is so important now. But it's going to be a lot tougher next fall if we push our luck...and lose.

Power curtailment check lists for home and business are available at any local Pacific Power office.
